

Biofore Share and Care Programme

UPM RULES FOR SPONSORSHIPS, DONATIONS AND EMPLOYEE VOLUNTEERING

UPM's Biofore Share and Care programme reflects our commitment to building a sustainable, innovation-driven future by sharing our expertise and assets for causes we care about.

What do we support?

We support initiatives that:

- are fully compliant with the UPM Code of Conduct
- reflect our dedication to a sustainable, innovation-driven future
- foster the vitality of communities in which we are active
- have clearly defined objectives as well as measurable impact and value both for society and UPM
- are related to our Biofore Share and Care focus areas:

Engaging with communities

Beyond fossils initiatives

We do not support:

- projects that cause a conflict of interests to us or may impact our business decisions or projects aimed at obtaining improper business advantage
- projects that may harm the reputational value of our brand
- projects that may have adverse social or environmental impact
- parties that do not commit to UPM's Supplier and Third Party Code
- private persons or political candidates, parties or groups
- telephone campaigns or other chain campaigns

How do we support?

Support can be in the form of:

- monetary contribution
- products or materials
- employee volunteering or fundraising

Donations to charitable causes are decided separately by UPM's Board of Directors within the authorisation approved by the General Meeting of Shareholders.

Applying for support

- Before applying, make sure that your initiative fits UPM's criteria.
- Remember to tell us in detail how your initiative fulfils the criteria and benefits us when filling in the application form.
- You can apply for support at any time via our online platform.
- Applicants need to commit to UPM Supplier and Third Party Code.

Who can apply?

- community organisations
- associations
- NGOs
